

Peter's Big Adventure

My mummy says I'm different,
I am very unique.

My daddy says I'm a superhero,
With my special physique.

Some people think it's strange.
And some even think it's cool.
But I know deep inside
I'm no different from them all.

So if you ever meet me,
Please don't be afraid,
Because I am simply me,
And this is how I was made.

Meet Peter

Peter is just like any other adventurous child—he loves to run, play, and explore!

But Peter is also a little bit special.

He was born with Poland syndrome.

which means one of his hands didn't grow quite the same way as the other.

Off on the Treasure Hunt

Peter and his best friends,
Maya and Leo, sprinted toward the first challenge:

First, the Swings...

Peter looked forward to their next adventure together.

First up—the Wobbly Bridge.
Maya and Leo stretch their arms wide to balance. Peter crouches low and shuffles like a crab.

His way is different, but it works just as well!

With his Poland syndrome hand tucked against his side, Peter made it across the wobbly bridge just fine.

Next was the Tall Climbing Tree.

Peter climbed one-handed,
gripping each branch tightly.

They followed the last clue through the park.

Next up, the Mud Crawl.

Peter grinned as he wriggled forward. How will I do this? he wondered.

The final clue led to a treasure chest.

"I knew we could do it!"
Peter cheered.

Inside were toy treasures.

“You were a great leader,
Peter!” said his friends.
